Three African Kings Visit Brighton in 1895:
An Online Black History Education Resource

Learning check

Match up these sentences using your pen to link them

Tswana	When European countries grabbed parts of Africa to keep in their Empires
Empire	The Brighton missionary who was paid by Khama to organise the tour of Britain
Charles Willoughby	Where the Tswana people settled it, became Botswana in 1966
Bechuanaland	A group of countries all ruled by one other powerful country
The Font	The people who lived in Bechuanaland
Cecil Rhodes	The pub in Brighton that used to be the Church of Charles Willoughby
The Scramble for Africa	A rich mine owner and politician who wanted Britain to control lots of land in Africa
Howard Willoughby	The 8-year-old boy who the Kings used to translate what they wanted to say to politicians

What have you learned today? Tick or colour the two most interesting things and add your own

Three important Kings visited Brighton and Elm Grove school all the way from Southern Africa in 1895
Seretse Khama was the first president of Botswana with his white wife and dual heritage children
European countries scrambled to take over African countries after 1895

The British people loved meeting the kings and the newspapers were excited to report about their visit
Three kings saved their country from Cecil Rhodes (whose statue at Oxford university has been criticised)
Brighton has a link with a museum in Botswana through Charles Willoughby’s collection